Submarines Get Transports and 4,000 Soldiers

Enemy Reinforcements Smashed on Way To Malaya; British, Allies Sink 2 Italian Cruisers, Torpedo Boat In Mediterranean.

(By Associated Press)

BATAVIA, Java, N. E. I.—Dutch submarines were credited tonight with destruction of about 4,000 Japanese soldiers and their four transports off southern Thailand and another naval force was said to have liquidated a Japanese settlement on the east coast of Borneo.

The transports were smashed as the Japanese reinforcements were being moved to the Malayan battlefront.

The submarine victory was announced by the Batavia radio but the N. E. I. military-naval communique reported the Borneo action, saying "a unit of our naval forces has dealt with a Japanese settlement on the east coast of Borneo."

"A number of motor launches were seized during this action while other vessels were destroyed," the communique added. "The settlers have been interned."

The submarine action in the Gulf of Siam was one of the sharpest blows yet delivered against the Japanese.

(The British radio said that actually five Japanese transports were sunk by the Dutch submarines under British naval command 75 miles off Cape Patani, in peninsular Thailand. NBC recorded the BBC report.)

The fully loaded transports were headed south, presumably for a new landing in British Malaya.

A flying boat of the royal Netherlands navy drove off three enemy aircraft, damaging one, in an air fight in the South China sea.

British, Dutch Knock Out 4 Italian Ships

LONDON — (UP) — British and Dutch destroyers, striking before dawn today in the central Mediterranean, knocked out all of an Italian naval squadron consisting of two cruisers, a torpedo boat and a motor speed boat.

The admiralty said that one Italian cruiser was sunk, a second was damaged heavily and left ablaze from stem to stern, the torpedo boat was severely damaged and the motor boat (known as an E-boat) sunk.

The action followed an official report yesterday that an Italian cruiser had been sunk by a British submarine in the same area. The British destroyers which WASHINGTON— Congress moved swiftly today on the army's request that all American men from 18 to 65 inclusive be registered in a great pool of manpower for the war.

Despite a smattering of opposition—the first yet expressed in congress to any war measure — leaders predicted early passage of the bill which would permit registration of the 18 to 64 group and designate those between 19 and

War Hero's Widow Prays He Knew He 'Got' Jap Warship

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—A pretty 23-year-old mother and widow murmured a prayer today and then — dry-eyed and calmly—she told how proud she is of her husband who died raining mortal aerial blows upon the Japanese battleship Haruna.

She was Mrs Colin P. Kelly, jr., who was widowed when the 26-year-old captain sacrificed his life to deliver the direct bomb hits that sank the 29,300-ton enemy battlewagon in the Far East and thus became America's first hero of World War II.

"Please Lord," said Mrs. Kelly as she held her 18-months-old son in her lap, "that Colin knew he got that darn battleship before he died.

"It was the way Colin wanted to go. I am proud and glad for him that the end of a full life came in the way he wanted."

Mrs. Kelly and her red-haired son are planning to leave her father's Brooklyn home today to fly to Madison, Fla, to spend some time with Captain Kelly's parents.

"Perhaps it is difficult for you to come here to my father's house and not find me weeping," Mrs. Kelly told a reporter. "I will not weep. I will not break down. Colin and I often talked about what might happen. And here it is.

"I have lived with my husband at army bases in Texas, California, and Hawaii. And I have seen death. I have seen four of our close friends crash to their deaths in the line of duty in a single afternoon.

"I have made a promise to myself since Colin's death. And I'll keep the promise. Colin here, my baby—our son—will follow in his father's footsteps. He must go to West Point some day."

Captain Kelly, star athlete at the Point, was graduated in June, 1937, and less than two months later, led his bride to the altar.

TIGHTENS HOLD

U. S. Delays Decision on Using French Ships.

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The government, having tightened custody over 12 French ships, including the liner Normandie, withheld a decision today on formally requisitioning them for American use.

Coast guardsmen and marines supplanted the French crews of the 12 ships "as a matter of necessary protection to the crews and vessels."

The justice department last night said the French crew men had been taken to immigration stations so their passports could be checked. They will then be released on parole.

The government wanted to make certain the ships would not be sabotaged by anyone as were German and Italian vessels before coast guardsmen could take them over last spring.

WAR STRIKES CLOSE TO CITY

Big Prarie Youth 'Wounded In Action'; Brother of Mansfield Man Killed.

War struck close to Mansfield today, as word arrived of the first casualties from this area in the Pacific conflict.

Eugene Oscar Roe, 18, a naval gunner, brother of a Mansfield resident, was killed at Pearl Harbor Sunday, the navy reported. The brother, George H. Roe, of 706 Bowman street, an employe of the Barnes Manufacturing company, has been a Mansfield resident for six months Name of the ship on which the youth was stationed was not disclosed. He was a son of Morris B Roe of Portsmouth and Mrs Karl F. Reider of Lancaster. Burial will be at Pearl Harbor.

Another casualty from this area was revealed in a telegram from the navy department to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bowen, of Big Prairie, Wayne county, which advised that their only son, Samuel F. Bowen, 25, was "wounded in action."

The telegram cautioned the family about disclosing the name of his ship, and said that details concerning him and his condition would follow. The parents reported that the last letter received from their son arrived several weeks ago, and that at

SAN FRANCISCO — (AP) — San Francisco, undergoing its fourth blackout of the war last night in an air raid alert that lasted two hours and 34 minutes, proved to the army that it knows how to turn out the lights.

A score of persons were injured, one man dropped dead, there was violence and property damage. Strange rumors were noised about. But the city was black.

It was such an improvement that Lieut. General John L. Dewitt, commander of the Fourth army, who became bitterly angry over San Francisco's first bungling blackout attempt Monday, said he was "extremely pleased."

HERE'S WHAT WE AT HOME CAN DO IN WAR

All Can Help by Volunteering To Serve In Organizations For City's Defense.

ENROLLMENTS OPENED

Kalbfleisch Points Out City Can't Take Chances Even If Danger Seems Remote.

Mr. and Mrs Public of Mansfield got the answer today to their question, "What can I do?" —the question they have been asking with increasing volume and tempo since the United States abruptly found itself embroiled in the war.

The answer came from the Mansfield civilian defense committee, which outlined a comprehensive program for immediate establishment of auxiliary police and fire-fighting units and a nurses air corps. Moving swiftly to carry out the program drawn up at a three-hour session last night, the committee opened enrollment of volunteers today in scattered stations throughout the city.

Prompt response was expected from the men and women of the city. Many of them have been offering their services during the past week to Police Chief M. K. Bates and to other members of the civilian defense committee

Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, chairman of the 11-man committee, called upon the city to extend its full co-operation. Speaking with complete frankness of the situation, he said:

"We are not in possession of any information which would lead the committee to the conclusion that Mansfield may suffer an air raid or an actual contact with the armed forces of the enemy, and it is our opinion, hope, and prayer that we never shall

"But in view of the events of the past week, it would be pure foolhardiness to neglect to prepare for any eventuality. We hope to logically and effectively organize this community in air raid precaution and to prevent sabotage and espionage.

"In the furtherance of this responsible civic duty we beseech all citizens to give their utmost co-operation."

No blackout is contemplated for Mansfield at present, Judge Kalbfleisch said. He expressed belief a test blackout would accomplish

Workers in the city street department were out early, spreading cinders and salt on the more dangerous spots. Motorists had the most trouble on the hills on South Main and South Diamond

Defenders Mop Up Invaders In Lingayen Area

Enemy Aircraft Strike Anew at Bases Near Manila; Military Losses Slight But Civilian Homes Are Set Afire; Sentries Battle Fifth-Columnists.

By R. P. CRONIN, JR.

MANILA — (AP) — Japanese landing forces which won a foothold at Lingayen on the west coast of Luzon 100 miles from Manila were declared officially today to have been wiped out.

A communique from the headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Douglas MacArthur indicated that the Japanese had made no gains at other landing bridgeheads and that no new landings had been reported.

"The situation on the ground has not changed," the war bulletin asserted.

It added that "mopping up in the Lingayen area has been concluded."

Thus the second Japanese attempt to gain a Luzon foothold there within striking distance of the concentration of military works around Manila apparently was smashed in a stubborn defense fight.

The Japanese first were reported landing at Lingayen last Wednesday. Within 24 hours the situation there was declared "under control," but it was disclosed yesterday that the Japanese were attempting once more to develop an attack there.

A Tokyo official broadcast earlier told the Japanese people that their forces were advancing inland from the Luzon landings and urging the Filipinos to revolt.

General MacArthur reported earlier that fighting at other places where the Japanese had stabbed at the coastal defenses had become sporadic. He declared there had been no confirmation of recurrent reports that the Japanese had landed parachute troops.

The Japanese struck anew during the day at United States air bases around Manila and elsewhere in the Philippines, but a communique said that although reports so far were meager "it is believed our losses were slight."

Some Japanese planes—their number undetermined—were reported shot down. A harbor defense anti-aircraft battery was credited with bringing down one of the attackers.

In possibly their heaviest attack of the day the Japanese bombed military objectives in the Manila area—particularly Nichols field.

(Bert Silen. NBC correspondent, said in a broadcast from the Philippine capital that damage to the field apparently was slight but that for almost a mile civilian homes were set afire.)

The raiders met strong resistance from fighter planes and anti-aircraft guns.

The raiders first appeared just after noon and the attack developed into apparently the heaviest thrust of the day at the Philippines. Bomb attacks on other points in the Philippines earlier had been reported.

The Manila attack centered around Nichols field, although it was presumed other places in the area were bombed.

An Associated Press staff member, Clark Lee, watched the raid from Manila's tallest building and saw American or Philippine fighters pitch into the formation of Japanese bombers.

The fighter craft attacked from above the planes and then flew up from below to get a second crack at them. However, the Japanese still held their formations.

Japan Claims Sinking of Third U. S. Battleship

TOKYO—(Official Radio Received By AP)—The Japanese raised to three their claims of United States battleships sunk in the initial aerial onslaught on Hawaii last Sunday, adding today the U. S. S. Arizona to the previously claimed battleships Oklahoma and West Virginia.

The naval section of imperial headquarters said the sinking of the Arizona "is now confirmed."

(How this was "confirmed," the communique did not say and there was no verification of the Japanese assertion in any other quarter.

(It has been an Axis technique to make spectacular war claims, especially naval, in hope of learning the true result of attacks from its adversaries' denials.

(The United States has acknowledged that one battleship capsized and a destroyer was blown up in the enemy attack on Pearl Harbor Dec. 8.)

Japanese army headquarters declared that the fall of Britain's crown colony of Hongkong was imminent following complete Japanese occupation of Kowloon "whose four miles-long and supposedly impregnable defenses have been battered down."

It said the colony was under sustained Japanese aerial attack.

The mainland peninsula of Kowloon has the British city of Kowloon on it and faces the island part of Hongkong.

It said preparations already had begun for an attack on Hongkong. Other Japanese advices said Britain's main defense lines in front of the island had been broken.

Japanese sources said the British and American fleets in the Pacific now have lost about 140,000 tons of warships sunk, damaged or captured.

Their list included five battleships, one submarine, three smaller surface vessels and two other vessels sunk; an aircraft carrier probably sunk and four battleships, four cruisers, a submarine and 10 smaller craft damaged.

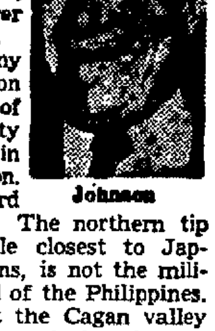
GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — The air and the commentators' columns are pretty much being taken up either with explanations of why some cryptic words of theirs did not foresee the Japanese assault on Pearl Harbor and northern Luzon, or why clearer words did not.



Johnson

As far as my observation went, words of neither variety went very far in either direction. This is not hard to understand. The northern tip of Luzon, while closest to Japanese possessions, is not the military stronghold of the Philippines. It is true that the Cagan valley is a beautiful agricultural area and that, for those who like Manila tobacco, it raises what is the equivalent of best Havana to the taste of the western world.

But this is not a war over superfine wrappers and fillers for cigars. The real citadel of those islands is Manila bay with its Gibraltar of Corregidor and its immensely strong flanking works of Cavite and Olongapo. To take these works would be harder than a seige. They could not be captured without great losses.

Turning to Pearl Harbor, it is probably the strongest naval and air base in the Pacific. If the attack there had been with any intention of subduing it by force, it is incredible that a very large naval and air fleet should not have been sent. The operation was successful in its destructiveness, but it appears to have done little permanently to weaken our central base in the Pacific.

Putting these two considerations together it seems certain that, in addition to the harm intended to vessels afloat, the objects were two; first, destruction of ships and planes; second, a diversion of our Atlantic fleet plus perhaps the British Pacific fleet to cover some greater naval effort and objective, as for example, the ambitious attack on Malaya. Whether such was the purpose or not, it certainly was the effect, as the disastrous naval action of Malaya clearly showed.

These post-mortems do little good in appraising the general strategy in the Pacific but they add a good deal of weight, I think, to the analysis made here a day or two ago which argued that there were two separate and distinct kinds of blunders made by our own command. The lesser, probably chargeable to some officer in a relatively subordinate position, was the fact that our airplanes were pinned to the ground, their anti-aircraft guns not ready for action either on the ships or on the shore and some, at least, of the vessels not steamed up and ready for action. The greater error was quite clearly attributable to some high element of command, and was the more disastrous.

It may be quite true, as this column itself urged that there are not enough facts yet upon which to base a judgment but why is it true that there are not enough facts on which to base an inquiry? Commanding officers cannot be running around like Soviet commissars, or Napoleon's first command, with political crisis constantly at their elbow. But it is far from true that commanders responsible for great catastrophes should not be held rigidly to account for the cause of them. Reports of these inspections should, of curse, be withheld until they are of no service to the enemy but they certainly should not be withheld one moment beyond the point at which they would be of some service to our own troops.

Military lessons are only written in blood and only taught by trial and error. Military commanders who lose disastrous battles through recklessness or ignorance cannot be maintained in command if the confidence of the troops is to be retained. It is almost a military axiom that rewards should be bestowed instantaneously and on the spot. That is why Napoleon was fond of saying: "every common soldier carries a field marshall's baton in his knapsack." It might have been almost as appropriate for him to have said: "every failure field marshal carries the bullets for his firing squad in his sabretache."

FORD LAUNCHES 168-HOUR WEEK TO MAKE ARMS

Automobile Plants Closing Down Because of Defense Quota Restrictions.

DETROIT—(U.P.)—The Ford Motor company, with defense contracts totaling more than $900,000,000, began turning out arms to beat the Axis on a 24-hour, seven day a week schedule today.

Edsel Ford, president of the company, announcing the schedule, said it was in effect wherever practical. Workers in the $37,500,000 Pratt and Whitney airplane engine factory at River Rouge, Mich., were put on two 10-hour shifts, seven days a week.

An around-the-clock schedule also was instituted at the $58,500,000 plant near Ypsilanti, Mich., which will be turning out Consolidated B-24E bombers by Spring, at its air field, in the engineering laboratory, tool and die plant and magnesium foundry.

"We have taken this action in response to the government's declaration of all-out effort on the war," Ford said. "We have asked employes in the present defense operations to volunteer for a seven-day week until we can train additional men so that the seven-day schedule can be maintained for the shop while the individual employe puts in only the normal week. The response to this request has been unanimous."

The automobile industry was closing down plants no longer needed because of restricted passenger car quotas, but Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner of Michigan said at Lansing that he did not believe layoffs would cause much unemployment.

MAIL RUSH ON AT POSTOFFICE

Christmas Mailing, Heavy Shipments to Camps Keep Clerks Busy.

Between the annual rush in Christmas mailing and an enormous volume of mail to the men in camps this year, the Mansfield postoffice is the busiest spot in town these days.

Harry W. Zellner, superintendent of mails at the postoffice, said today that approximately 60,000 pieces of mail were handled yesterday.

On an average day approximately 50,000 pieces of mail of all classes are sent through the office daily, but now that average has risen until an estimated 100,000 letters, cards, and packages are being handled every 24 hours.

"Monday we can expect close to 100,000 pieces of mail," Zellner said. He pointed out that figures on the cancelling machine showed that during the past week 54,000 more letters were cancelled than for the same week last year.

"Easily 20 per cent of all our mail goes to the men in camp," he stated, "and most of our mail to the western states is for army camps."

"Now we make up the mail in sacks direct to the camps, instead of tying them up in packs and adding them to the regular mail like we do with air mail and special deliveries. This saves the mail from going through the terminals in cities," he explained.

Zellner said that every incoming train brought an increase in the volume of mail to be sorted and delivered, and added that since the declaration of war on Monday, outgoing mail to army camps had increased 100 per cent over previous weeks.

J. A. C. Schedules Another Matinee For Yule Baskets

With the first of a series of Saturday morning matinees, sponsored to obtain much needed canned goods to fill Christmas baskets for the unfortunate, held this morning, the Junior Association of Commerce launched plans today for a similar benefit next Saturday.

The Madison theater has offered the use of this playhouse for the "tin can" matinee, Saturday, Dec. 20, and the association hopes to make this repeat performance a record-breaking affair since foodstuffs are badly needed.

Today's morning matinee at the Ritz theater, whose staff donated all services for the occasion, netted only about 200 cans of goods due largely to the icy streets and rain, which prevented the attendance of more children.

The matinee next Saturday will be open to both children and adults and the only admission fee will be at least one can of fruit, vegetables or other foodstuffs, canned in tin. Goods in glass jars are not acceptable due to breakage.

FARMERS CROWD COURTROOM TO HEAR COURT GRANT INJUNCTION

More than 150 farmers jammed the Richland county common pleas courtroom yesterday afternoon as Judge C. H. Huston granted 33 Richland county wheat growers a temporary injunction to halt the collection of the 49-cent AAA wheat penalty from the 33 growers.

The hearing required only five minutes. The county and state AAA officials and committeemen who were named defendants in the injunction suit offered no protest. Guy L. Taylor, Richland county AAA chairman, appeared at the hearing but made no comment.

The temporary order, which will expire when the suit is heard in common pleas court, enjoins the AAA from collecting the penalty on wheat sold by the 33 farmer plaintiffs in excess of their federal crop allotments. No date has been set for the hearing, but it is expected to be within the next 60 days.

Representing the plaintiffs yesterday was William Lemke, former North Dakota congressman, who previously filed three other similar suits in Ohio counties. Also at the hearing was Russell Kiko, Stark county, state chairman of the Wheat Marketing Quota Protest committee.

In the courtroom audience were farmers from Richland, Morrow, Ashland, and other nearby counties. The group included several women.

Judge Huston read the farmers' petition and granted the temporary order without comment. Lemke asked the farmers in the group to abide by the order and not attempt to help other farmers not affected by the injunction to market wheat without paying the penalty. Marketing cards are necessary to sell wheat under the AAA regulations.

The plaintiffs contended in their petition that the marketing quotas, limiting the amount of wheat they can sell, and the penalty of 49 cents per bushel were enacted illegally last May following a referendum in which producing states west of the Mississippi river put the quotas over. Ohio voted against them.

Chairman Taylor of the county AAA committee said after the hearing yesterday that none of the plaintiffs in the case had paid the wheat penalty or had been ordered to pay it. He estimated that only 25 of the farmers subject to the penalty had paid it.

"We have actually talked all of them out of selling their wheat that we could and saved them from the tax, because wheat is not needed on the market now anyway," Taylor said.

Up and Down the Street

Mansfield streets should be crowded with hometown soldiers within the next two weeks. Holiday leaves for officers and men in Ohio's 37th division started last night. Because of the war declaration, however, the number to be granted leaves has been cut in half. A large number of Mansfield youths are expected to spend furloughs at home. Officers have been granted not more than 12 days liberty while soldiers' furloughs have been cut to seven or eight days.

The fire alarm sounded in the Central fire station early this morning and firemen donned fire fighting equipment and piled onto their trucks. The call was from the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company. Arriving there, they found their work had been for naught. A truck had backed against one of the company's fire alarm boxes, setting off the alarm.

North central Ohio's maze of roads proved too much this morning for a detachment of the U. S. Army which had stayed overnight at Bucyrus. The soldiers left Bucyrus early today headed towards Mansfield. Mansfield police were asked to contact the troops and to inform them that they were going in the wrong direction. The soldiers were supposed to go westward from Bucyrus.

Former Isolationist Seeks Active Duty with Army.

Clark served in France during World war I and was discharged with the rank of colonel.

SPURS FEDERAL AGENCIES TO GET MUNITIONS

Financial Advisers Map Plans To 'Pay the Bill' For Greatest War.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — While American fighting men traded blow for blow with the Japanese in the Pacific and progressively evened up the score, President Roosevelt today placed every facility of the government behind a drive to speed up munition production, and his financial advisers mapped plans for "paying the bill" of the greatest war in history.

The president spurred federal agencies to underwrite immediate moves for a stupendous increase in the production of anti-aircraft guns, bombing and combat planes, fighting ships, tanks and armored cars.

A vital part of this victory program will place American war industries on a seven-day work week, with all holidays—including Christmas and new year' day—cancelled.

With congress in recess over the week-end, house and senate conferees met today to write a final report on the $10,000,000,000 war appropriation bill. Their conference report, to be drafted informally, will be submitted to both branches Monday for formal adoption and final passage of the bill.

This measure carries funds to increase the army, and especially the army air corps; for new war factories; to arm merchant ships, and for great supplies of planes, artillery and tanks. A sum of $269,000,000 was set aside specifically for Philippine defense.

Senate and house naval affairs committees had before them the administration's urgently requested bill boosting authorized warship strength by 30 per cent. Hearings will begin Monday.

At the president's behest, treasury and congressional experts began drafting recommendations for another $5,000,000,000 increase in federal taxes to help pay the war costs.

In pressing for a 7-day work week that will bring war production up to total capacity, President Roosevelt pointedly stated that the 40-hour law will prevail, with time and a half for all work in excess of that figure.

Cafe Owner Found Guilty In Death Of Woman Golfer

LEXINGTON —(INS)— The first conviction was recorded with a recommendation for the death penalty today as the state moved swiftly against two others for the senational murder of golf queen Marion Miley, 27, and her 50-year-old Mother, Elsa.

Robert H. Anderson, 36, proprietor of a cheap night spot in Louisville, was found guilty of the murder of Miss Miley last night by a jury which had deliberated for more than 24 hours.

The jury recommended death in the electric chair for Anderson. In Kentucky, the jury's recommendation is not mandatory, and may be modified by Judge Chester Adams when he passes sentence, probably late next week.

Anderson was the only one of the three charged with murder in the case who had consistently maintained his innocence, according to officers. Confessions, which involved Anderson, have been attributed to Tom Penney and to Raymond Baxter, the other two.

Defenders Wipe Out Japs on Luzon Coast

One flight of enemy planes passed directly over the Associated Press lookout post at an altitude of about 10,000 feet, bringing a shower of shrapnel from anti-aircraft guns.

The noise of the bombings ceased about 1 p. m. (12 midnight Friday EST).

Incomplete reports said native residential sections immediately outside the military establishments were bombed also.

The bombers were engaged by American defenders as soon as they appeared.

The Japanese winged in upon the city from the west and flew directly toward Nichols air depot.

Ground watchers saw one spectacular dog-fight when a lone American closed in and engaged two Japanese planes. The trio disappeared in the clouds to the west with the battle still raging.

Earlier today Japanese planes lashed at outlying Philippine strongholds.

The spurt of raiding followed a night of shooting in Manila where sentries and constables, ordered to "shoot to kill" to stamp out fifth columnists, battled against elements who fired rockets over the city and violated its stringent blackout.

Lieut.-Gen Douglas MacArthur, commander of the U. S. far eastern army, announced at 11 a. m. (10 p. m. EST Friday) that the Japanese had bombed Clark field, 40 miles north of Manila, and Cebu, about 250 miles southeast of Manila, during the morning.

The far eastern commander said, however, there was only sporadic and unimportant activity on land front, where the Japanese are attempting to establish a permanent base on Luzon island, the key to the Philippines.

(In Washington, the war department announced last night that the Japanese attempted yesterday to land south of Vigan and north of San Fernando and at Lingayen, all on the west Luzon coast, but were repulsed.)

Authorities have arrested more than 500 Europeans in a roundup of Italians and Germans. The Axis nationals were ready—with trunks packed and containers of food at hand.

A plea for swift help from the United States was voiced by U. S. High Commissioner Francis B. Sayre in a broadcast to the United States.

"We know you back home will send us help and you won't permit divided counsels or capital and labor disputes or red tape or anything else to delay your getting effective help to us before it is too late," he said.

"We are in the fight to stay. War enjoins upon us all action, action, action.

"Time is of the essence. Come on America."

Lieut. Gen. MacArthur sent a message to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek conveying his greetings "in sympathy and in spirit."

An army spokesman said there had been no confirmation of reports that Japanese parachute troops had landed anywhere on the Philippines. He declared the reports might have originated when American or Japanese airmen bailed out of their planes.

Russians Claim Routing of 750,000 Nazis at Moscow

(By United Press)

KUIBYSHEV, Russia—Russia claimed one of the greatest military victories in modern history today, asserting it had definitely smashed an offensive by 51 German divisions, upwards of 750,000 men, on Moscow and the Germans were fleeing.

It was disclosed that the Russians started a counter-offensive one week ago today and after stopping the Germans who had essayed their greatest drive of the war in an attempt to take the Soviet capital, had recaptured 400 towns and villages, extending from the north to the south of the capital in a great semi-circle.

Further, it was asserted that on the southern front the armies of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko were still in full pursuit of the Germans west of Taganrog and were impeded only by German dead and smashed tanks and trucks which littered the roads and fields.

(Russia's noon communique, heard by the United Press at London, said that the Russian southern armies in the south had won further successes and had recaptured additional towns and villages. It reported the German 60th infantry regiment routed with 400 killed.)

It was asserted oifcially that in the Moscow fight the Germans had lost 85,000 of their vaunted "Herren folk" in killed.

The Russians had captured or destroyed 1,434 German tanks, 5,416 troops and supply trucks, 575 field guns, 339 mine throwers, 860 machine guns, it was asserted, on the basis of reports still incomplete because additional material was being captured hourly.

News of the victory came while Russia was still considering its policy in the Pacific war, but after the official Russian Communist newspaper Pravda, denouncing the Japanese for their treacherous attack on the United States, had left no doubt as to its viewpoint.

The cost of living in the entire country was 7.5% higher in October, 1941, than in October, 1940.

HERE'S WHAT WE AT HOME CAN DO IN WAR

All Can Help by Volunteering To Serve In Organizations For City's Defense.

little until a complete organization is built up.

Other Ohio cities were going ahead today with plans to "educate" their citizens in blackout procedure, after a warning by the state defense council to conduct no test blackouts without authorization from the governor.

In Columbus, the state council on nutrition for defense continued to organize local units in the state's 88 counties. Permanent units have been set up in 38 counties and 30 others have completed temporary organization.

Most important immediate task, in the opinion of the Mansfield committee is building up the auxiliary police, fire, and nurses units. Application blanks for enrolment in all three units were distributed this morning, and enlistments began at noon.

Men may enlist in the police and fire units at Central police and fire station, or at any of the three other fire department stations throughout the city. Women may enroll for the nurses corps at the same stations, but it is preferred that they enroll at the Red Cross offices, at 11 West Fourth street.

Men between the ages of 25 and 45 are sought for the police unit, and no age limits are set for the fire unit. Those with former military training or service, who are physically fit and beyond present selectee restrictions, are preferred. A limit of 100 men has been set for the auxiliary police unit, and the auxiliary fire units will be kept to 90 for each of the four fire stations, or a total of 350.

The nurses corps will be restricted to a group of 75 in the initial class. These volunteers will receive a total of 80 hours of intensive training—35 hours at the Red Cross offices and 45 at General hospital. Their task will be to assist doctors and regular nurses to permit handling of the greatest possible number of patients.

Chief Bates has a complete program drawn up for training of the volunteers who will serve under his direction. This will include training in patrol work, handling of traffic, guarding of industries, utilities, and bridges, and general information in the rudiments of police work.

A similar program has been drawn up by Fire Chief Charles F. Seeburger, who will direct training of the auxiliary firemen, handling of incendiary bombs, and other phases of fire fighting.

Because experience in London has shown that the most effective set-up for air raid precautions is an individual unit for each group of 500 of the population, a similar program is planned in Mansfield after the auxiliary police and firemen have been trained.

Because, in general, the regular precincet set-up in the city is based upon the same population groups, an individual unit eventually will be set up in each precinct. Each unit will include:

Four air raid wardens, fire watchers, messengers from 15 to 21 years of age to handle distribution of messages in event of suspension of telephone service, a staff corps to handle records, drivers who volunteer to drive and to provide an auto, and an air raid alarm corps, a rescue squad and a decontamination squad which will be trained by a representative of the Army Medical corps in fighting gas effects, and enrollees for road repair. One bomb squad, whose function will be to remove unexploded bombs, will be established later.

On another front, Mansfield citizens were rallying in greater numbers to co-operate in the defense program. Assistant Postmaster W. T. Houston reported that a new one-day high in sale of defense bonds and stamps was set at the postoffice yesterday. Approximately $5,000 worth of bonds and $1,000 worth of savings stamps were sold.

ICE-BREAKER SOUGHT

WASHINGTON—(AP)—An $8,000,000 appropriation for constructing a large ice breaker to keep Great Lakes shipping channels open during the winter season is included in the third supplemental defense appropriation bill reported to the senate.

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, December 14.

SUNDAY'S horoscope may be very favorable for seeking advancement, promotion or other tokens of preferment and honor at the hands of employers, or for cultivating the friendship of those in influence or social standing. It should be a time for pushing to high goals, especially the intellectual forces. The mind should be brilliant, witty, humorous as well as practical and constructive. Spiritual forces are also stimulated and creative. In all affairs shun extravagance and personal indulgences.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a very constructive year, with the mind keyed to high achievement and ambitious objectives. In this the friendly support of elders, employers, superiors and others whose influence is desirable, may be counted upon. Push for promotion, favors, honors and all that bring personal, professional as well as commercial progress and benefit. But in this enthusiasm don't be carried away by extravagance and indulgences.

A child born on this day should have excellent mental and creative abilities, and faculties for attaining important position, with honors, favors and the friendship of those in the seats of the mighty. It should set an advanced goal.

* * *

For Monday, December 15.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is not a particularly propitious one, as the tendency may be toward self-indulgence, indifference, variability, inharmony, or other negative qualities. Ill health or friction in the home may be at the root of such carelessness and irresponsibility in practical affairs, partnerships and property. Guard well the good name at this time and avoid overdoing in pleasure and extravagance.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves deep in a year in which success and good fortune depend upon their own integrity, attention to all obligations—business, family and social—as well as safeguarding ppossessions, funds and reputation as well. Application and fidelity may avert friction and unhappiness.

A child born on this day may be indulgent and careless with funds and personal obligations.

THE STORY SO FAR: Princess Hildur has given her first wish after she was 21 to a witch. She had promised the wish to the witch when she was a child.

Chapter Twelve.

THE WITCH LAYS WASTE TO KINGDOM'S CROPS

THAT night the Princess Hildur fell into troubled dreams. She hadn't slept an hour when she woke with a start because there was a sharp, rustling noise outside her window.

She jumped up, lit a candle, and ran to the window. There she saw a great oak tree, the leaves dropping from it. She stepped out on the balcony looked down, and there stood the first witch with her hand on the tree trunk. The tree was dead.

The witch cackled, bent down and touched a rose bush which immediately dropped its leaves. The witch looked up at Hildur and grinned.

"Oh, please don't do that," said Hildur.

"I can't help it," said the witch. "That's the way I am and I like it." The witch touched a white lily and it turned black. Then she disappeared.

Hildur ran quickly down the hall to her parents' room and told them the story. The King looked quite distressed. He hurried down to the great hall shouting, "Men, there is an old woman in black in the castle gardens. Catch her immediately."

The guardsmen drew their swords and ran in all directions through the gardens. But they didn't find the witch. Instead they found a black trail of dead bushes and trees. So they quickly mounted their horses and rode after her down the black trail she had left. She flew too fast for them.

* * *

When dawn came there was a great fright through the whole kingdom because she had slipped across almost every hill and farm and left a path of dead black crops.

The King called in all his wise men and they advised him to send out riders through the whole kingdom to ask for help. That day the King's soldiers were galloping along the roads and into the nearby kingdom to rally the young and the brave.

Two suns rose and sank before one such rider arrived in the neighboring kingdom at the castle of King Harald where Carl was now a captain of the King's guard.

Carl stood beside the throne and listened with glistening eyes. As soon as the messenger had stopped speaking Carl bowed to the King and said, "Sire, let me go I can find that witch."

King Harald sighed and looked affectionately at Carl. He said, "Son, go. But give heed to your safety."

Carl was given the finest black horse in the King's stables. The warmest fur jacket in the King's wardrobe, and he took along those precious arrows with the eagle's feathers. He has kept them safely all the years since the tournament.

* * *

As this was happening there was a great stir in Santa's Toyland. Santa was sitting that day beside a window carving tiny rose-buds on a doll's bed. Mrs. Santa sat beside him embroidering roses on the little white sheets which would go on the bed.

Santa stopped to light his pipe and to look out at the sun glistening on the snow. As he did so he exclaimed, 'Ho! Mrs. Santa, look."

She peered out at the snow, and said, "What! Where?"

"No, here," said Santa. He pointed at the green vine which grew around the window. It was the magic vine he had planted years before. It was covered suddenly with big red flowers.

"That's the lad," said Santa. "Carl. He's up to something important. Mrs. Santa, I must find out what's happening to him. Call my reindeers."

MONDAY: Carl pursues the witch.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1941.

"We are going to win the war and we are going to win the peace that follows. And in the dark hours of this day—and in the dark days that may be yet to come—we will know that the vast majority of the members of the human race are on our side . . . in representing our cause we represent theirs as well—our hope and their hope for liberty under God."—President Roosevelt.

Those Nazi armies planning to settle down quietly in Russia for the winter will probably be annoyed by occasional noises in the night.

Let's not allow the gloom and worries of war to mar the joy of American children during this Christmas season—it is the spirit of Christmas that brings a ray of hope to this war-torn world.

Move Toward Civilian Defense

ASSIGNMENT of specific duties to everyone who is willing and anxious to perform some service for his country will be a big job—but one that must be done in every town and city all over the country.

The Mansfield civilian defense committee, of which Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch is chairman, is getting off to a good start and the evidence of public co-operation shown during the past week indicates that there will be whole-hearted support of the program being developed.

While the idea of as comprehensive a civilian defense set-up as is proposed all over the United States is new to inland cities such as Mansfield, experience in other countries has proved the need for an alert and active citizenship to be on guard and available for auxiliary fire or police duty in the event of emergency, and for other war-time services.

Further plans (such as can safely be made public) will be announced by Chairman Kalbfleisch as the committee makes progress with its work.

Children's Response Appreciated

EXTENT to which Mansfield school children responded to the American Legion's request for contributions of candy bars to be included in Christmas packages to be sent to Mansfield and Richland county boys in military service evidences the lively interest which boys and girls of this community are showing in the effort to brighten the holiday season for the young men who are now in the service of their country.

As contributions of candy bars by school children mounted above the 5,000 mark, Sam Fox, commander of McVey post, American Legion, expresses gratification at the unanimity of response and indicates a desire that mention be made of his personal appreciation, and the sincere appreciation of McVey post, to the children of Mansfield for their willing help.

While it may not now be realized by Mansfield children, and the children of America in general, it is really for THEM that this war is being fought—as it was for succeeding generations, including ours, that earlier wars were fought by the United States. One generation of adults lasts but a short time, at the best. It is for our children, and our children's children, that America's freedom must be preserved.

Supplying Socks to Soldiers

THAT recent hullabaloo over the quantities of socks ordered for the United States army seems to have resulted from lack of information. Some critics insisted that 78,000,000 pairs of socks was an outrageously large supply and that the army we now have couldn't possibly use them up in ten years.

"Who says we can't use them up?" asks the chief of the quartermaster corps. "Go take a look at the socks worn out during the southern maneuvers."

The army has to count on supplying at least 2,000,000 men. It has to place its orders in advance of need to keep up its stocks. It must pick up off-season slacks in industry and get price advantages. There must be plenty of every size in such things as socks and shoes, because foot comfort is of tremendous importance. There must always be on hand the initial issue to give to men when they come into the army, replacement stocks to distribute as the first issue wears out, and enough more in the stock rooms to keep stores of proper sizes on hand at camps and supply base warehouses.

It would be more reasonable to complain if the army didn't order those millions of pairs of hose.

Tanker Designed for River Service

SOMETHING new in river boats is the Minneapolis Husky, the first tanker ever to run on the Mississippi river. It is long and narrow, something like the ore boats of the Great Lakes. It is larger than some ocean tankers, though not suitable for any but coastwise ocean service.

Propelled by two Diesel engines the Husky can make nine miles an hour, a better speed than much of the river traffic. It carries in its hold 9,000 barrels of gasoline or fuel oil and can push a barge carrying as many more. There is also room on deck for a large cargo.

The Husky is fitted with modern navigation instruments, electric steering gear, ship-to-shore radio telephone, inter-ship communication and a new carbon dioxide fire extinguisher system. It will remain in service all winter, carrying oil up the Ohio river when the upper Mississippi is frozen. Its main purpose is to provide express service between the Louisiana oil fields and Minneapolis.

This is another illustration of how life on the Mississippi is not merely reviving but developing. The improvements may not seem so picturesque as conditions a few generations ago, unless a modern Mark Twain appears to do them justice.

"Nutrition experts say if a child doesn't like spinach there is no reason why it should eat it"—which at least reveals the great need for a better pronoun than "it" when "he or she" is meant.

Word comes that an English fashion trend is toward pants without pockets—and the vogue may extend to the United States by early spring if taxes continue to go up.

Detroit is asking saloon keepers to warn their customers against drunken driving—and the reply of the drunk can be guessed with considerable confidence.

A check-up reveals that more people are afraid of lightning than of riding in an automobile in heavy traffic.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—It's a curious custom actors have of pasting telegrams on dressing room walls . . . At first glance, it may appear vain, or silly . . . It isn't quite that. These telegrams arrive on opening night when the pressure is on . . . It's pretty hard to think of anything but the business at hand and whether the enormous sums of money and energy expended over weeks of agonized effort will justify themselves or sag with the morning obits.

Try to read 40 or 70 telegrams under these conditions and you would have only a vague recollection of who your friends were. . . . That's why they're pasted on walls. After the opening, they can be enjoyed, sometimes even acknowledged. They lend to the dressing room the touch that a library gives to a home.

* * *

I WAS thinking of this while talking with Cornelia Otis Skinner in her dressing room at the Hudson theater the other night. I counted 95 telegrams on the walls. One of them was from Romney Brent, and it said, "We heard they wanted Admiral Byrd for the part but couldn't afford it." . . . There's a story behind this . . . It's one of Miss Skinner's favorite jokes . . . On one of her previous tours she appeared in a town where the man who introduced her to the audience said, "We wanted to get Admiral Byrd for tonight but he was too expensive, so we got Miss Skinner instead."

Another was from Isaac Marcosson. Miss Skinner remembers this ex-correspondent as the first man who ever asked her to marry him. She was one month old at the time, and he asked her father for her hand. His wire read: "Your first fiance sends you affectionate greetings and wishes you continued success."

There was also a wire from Frank Buck, who used to be a bell hop at Chicago's Virginia Hotel and who more than once rolled Miss Skinner around the block in her baby buggy. Frank says she was a very bad little girl who shrieked all the time, and he still doesn't know why he brought her back alive.

* * *

I FORGOT to mention that Miss Skinner is the star of the play "Theater," dramatized from Somerset Maugham's novel of the same name. In the cast is a stage doorman who talks continually about his pet, a prize alley cat who keeps him company during his backstage chores. You never see the cat during the play. But when the old man comes on stage to take his bows after the curtain falls, he has her in his arms.

I mention this because Miss Skinner has a little dog in her dressing room, and to this pet, whose name is Harriet Beecher Stowe, there came on opening night a telegram, too. It said, "A long run and a happy one, and if you need an understudy for that short haired alley cat, let me know." It was signed Mrs. Messer.

Mrs. Messer is a Persian-Angora who lives in Chicago and whose pedigree is as long as a setter's tail. When she said "alley cat," she wasn't kidding.

ONE WAY YOU CAN HELP

Why Japan Won Opening Round

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — The terrible thing about being a democracy is most obvious when it comes to the preliminary stages of war. The distressing losses suffered in the "surprise" attack by Japan might have been curtailed somewhat if there had been a little more intelligence in certain quarters, but there was no way whatever for this country to take the same sort of advantage which Japan did.

Nor is the answer merely that Uncle Sam is a gentleman, still regarding everything about war as though it were tilting at King Arthur's court. That is only part, and a very small part, of the answer. The real answer is that in such a government as ours—and this goes for Britain, and for France before her fall and for every one of the so-called democracies—we can get into war only by such a tortuous process leading the public patiently toward the goal, that every move we are about to make can be discounted by the rest of the world weeks in advance. Sometimes months.

TO use an apt prize ring expression, we "signal our punches." The opponent knows just what to do to prevent the blow from having any effect. But far worse than that, the opponent is able, reading the obvious signs predicting what we will do LATER, is able to get in a solar plexus while our guard is down, in fact, while we are looking the other way to see whether our seconds are in our corner yet!

Now the point here is that the fact that Japan starts her wars this way is no secret. She has NEVER started a way any other way. That is the way she got the jump on the Russians right after the turn of the century. She ruined a whole fleet of Russian warships before the surprised Russian naval officers knew that a war was imminent. That later naval battle, the one most people remember, was a Japanese victory very largely because Russian naval strength had been cut down by this earlier surprise attack.

* * *

OUR navy was thoroughly familiar with Japanese war tactics. Perhaps the admirals could not be expected to visualize such a wide-spread series of attacks before the declaration of war, but they knew the thing to do was to be prepared for one SOMEWHERE. Of course neither our navy nor anyone else figured that Japan was going to start quite so soon. Most observers thought there would be a further testing of how far she could go in Thailand, etc., without provoking the United States into open war.

It is easy to say that the navy ought to have been waiting for just such a move as caught our ships so unfortunately at Pearl harbor. Probably most of the criticism is justified But it is also fair to say that the navy had been privately urging the administration to let it make the first move. Naval experts thought, and still think, that we could have scored even more potently than the Japs scored had the navy been turned loose by President Roosevelt.

* * *

BUT there you are. We just can't do that sort of thing. We have to keep on looking over our shoulders to see if the folks are with us while our enemy slips up noiselessly with what some day in the future may turn out to be a knock-out blow.

Not this time. Not this war. We are very fortunate, as a matter of fact, that the blow, bad as it was, was not lethal. You can bet your bottom dollar that the Japanese war lords, far from being exultant, are dismayed that the damage was not greater.

Wear Your Rubbers

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

FRANK ALLEN'S a fine person. He's unusually intelligent, hardworking, sincere and reliable. Given any job within his range, he'll make good. Checks up, too, on the human side of things—is generous, sympathetic, loyal as they come.

At 39, you'd expect Frank to be a big success, tops in business, popular socially. Instead, he's a dismal failure with an inferiority complex a yard wide. He's been engaged twice, to lovely girls—but each time it fizzled. He's had splendid jobs, but always lost them. Scads of friends, but could never keep them. Strange? No. The answer's simple.

FRANK'S SENSITIVE. "SOMETHING'S ALWAYS HAPPENING TO HURT HIS FEELINGS." AND THAT SENSITIVENESS HAS WRECKED EVERY PLEASANT OR PROFITABLE PLAN HE EVER MADE.

Now, there are many varieties of sensitiveness. There are selfish people who make a racket of it for its "nuisance value," using well-timed pouts, tears and injured silences to get their own way. Others employ it to grab the spotlight, like the baby who pulls a tantrum until it is petted and praised. But Frank doesn't belong in either of these classifications. There is no malice in him, no conceited exhibitionism.

BUT HE'S A SENTIMENTALIST, AND THE VERY SWEETNESS OF HIS NATURE IS HIS UNDOING.

Frank has a glorified conception of what life and people should be like. To him, we're "just all one big, happy family"—and should act accordingly. There's no sxcuse for all this bickering . . . these unkind criticisms . . . or for the indifference or neglect which is equally painful.

IN SHORT, FRANK'S ALWAYS LOOKING FOR THE BEST . . . AND GETTING A CINDER IN HIS EYE AS A RESULT.

For the simple truth which Frank has always refused to accept is this: There is no "best" in life or human nature. And we're fools or public pests if we let ourselves be upset by the fact.

This is a busy, crowded world . . . hurried and worried by constant change and conflict. We're always on the move and under pressure, ducking and dodging endless disturbances. That's life. The smallest radish and the wisest man must do the same, in the jostling process of growth.

As a consequence, it's impossible for anyone constantly to consider the Other Fellow's feelings . . . or even, at times, to remember his existence . . . though we may be bound by the deepest affection. Much of our rudeness and seeming unkindness is the inevitable but unintential result of our haste and preoccupation.

It is impossible to wear our company manners all the time, and absurb for the other fellow to expect it. Sensitiveness, such as Frank's, is actually a childish form of self-indulgence. It's up to all of us to protect our own feelings and accept the small irritations and disappointments of life philosophically. That's as much our basic duty as breathing or washing our ears.

Remember back to your small-tad days, trudging to school under a stormy sky, and how mad you'd get at Mom when she'd call, "WEAR YOUR RUBBERS!" You didn't want to be bothered with rubbers. You wanted to trust to luck that it wouldn't rain. But Mom was right. She knew it was useless to ask the sky to keep her Darling dry. It was Darling's job to use his noodle and ward off his own disasters.

AND IT'S STILL DARLING'S DUTY TO WEAR HIS RUBBERS WHEN HE VENTURES INTO A THREATENING WORLD. GOD'S A BUSY JEHOVAH WITH A LOT OF CHORES ON HIS HANDS. HE CAN'T BE EXPECTED TO WATCH YOUR STEP AND WIPE YOUR TEARS. AND YOU'VE THE NERVE TO THINK HE WILL!

Timely Editorial

You May Save $5.

Since it would be inequitable, expensive to collect and no great revenue producer, the recently enacted $5 use tax on motor cars could very well go And go it probably will. It is a headache to the treasury which has no way of collecting it without a special grant from congress, which has been turned down.

Now the secretary of the treasury says he will recommend repeal of the tax and congress may respond with pleasure. This levy represents one vicious practice in taxation—going right back to the same source over and over again for money. Motor vehicles, accessories and gasoline are overlaid with so many taxes now that few car owners could list them without a guide book. Yet here was another layer tossed upon the pile, and to be paid by all whether the vehicle owned was itself worth no more than $5 or 100 to 500 times that amount.—Kansas City Star.

How It Started

"Blue Sky Laws.

"Give these wildcatters a chance," said a member of the Kansas legislature to another thirty years ago, "and they will capitalize the blue sky."

"Then" was the response, "let's make our restrictions against these thieves as far-reaching as the blue sky."

The year was 1911, the state was Kansas, the times were rife with real estate, oil, and other speculation in which the public, as usual, was being fleeced badly.

And so an act regulating the sale of public securities was passed by the Kansas legislature, to which, because of conversations like that quoted above, there popularly was applied the sobriquet "blue sky law."

It was not long before other states followed the lead of Kansas in passing similar legislation, to which the public continued to apply the same terms.

Aroused Nation Springs to Action As War Threats Become Realities

Quotes

President Roosevelt pledges full and final victory over the Japanese empire: "With confidence in our armed forces, with the unbounding determination of our people, we will gain the inevitable triumph. So help us God."

K. T. Keller, president of the Chrysler Corporation, makes a plea to manufacturers: "We must outproduce a war machine abroad that is efficient and ruthless and which years ago made production for war its ultimate goal."

HONOLULU woke early Sunday morning to the hum of battle planes. "Ours," thought sleepy householders, and turned over for another nap.

But early risers, peering at the sky, saw the rising sun painted on the bombers' wings. They were "theirs." Then bombs came whistling down.

Hours later, Japan got around to the formality of declaring war on America and Great Britain. Next day Britain and America replied in record time.

As the days unfolded, hammer-blow followed hammer-blow. Thailand gave up, and a horde of Japanese soldiers swarmed over her borders into Malaya and towards the Burma Road. Manila was bombed, and landings were made on Luzon island. The British warships Prince of Wales and Repulse were sunk. The Japanese claimed supremacy in the Pacific, but President Roosevelt dismissed this as "fantastic."

Thursday U. S. army bombers sank the battleship Haruna.

It became plain that the Japs' strategy was to put U. S. and British forces on the defensive in the Pacific while they thrust against the British in Burma and Singapore.

For reasons of their own, Japan's Axis partners, Germany and Italy, delayed declaring war until Thursday. Congress lost little time in declaring war on them, too.

Why did Japan attack?

Most observers agreed the Tokyo military set plunged their nation into war either as an oriental effort to "save face"—a do-or-die way out of the mess into which their country had fallen—or because they had received promises from Germany that led them to believe the war could be finished up quickly, with Japan sharing heavily in the spoils.

DeWitt Mackenzie, Wide World news analyst, wrote: "We mustn't overlook that the Japanese conflict is part and parcel of the World War and that knocking Japan out won't end the bigger conflagration."

* * *

Giant Aroused.

Like a good-natured giant, stunned by a blow from behind, Uncle Sam staggered under the first Japanese attack. Then he recovered his balance, jutted his jaw and fought back—persuaded at last that not everyone is to be trusted.

From the second that the news came, America's differences were dropped.

As quickly as the surprise circumstances permitted, the nation switched over to a full war-time basis.

Legislation was immediately introduced in congress to permit soldiers — draftees included — to fight anywhere in the world and to keep them under arms for the duration. A change in the draft age brackets and the cancelling of many deferments also was in prospect.

SPAB demanded a "victory program" which probably would double the nation's spending for armaments. Estimates of the amount ranged from $35,000,000,000 to $50,000,000,000.

Enemy banks and businesses were seized, and the government slapped rigid restrictions on Japanese, German and Italian "enemy aliens." Many regarded as especially dangerous were arrested. The Justice Department, however, urged Americans to be careful not to harm the "many persons of Japanese extraction whose loyalty to this country is unquestioned."

At Home

Freedom of Speech.

In the summer of 1940 Sussex county, New Jersey, officials closed down a German-American Bund camp. Nine men were convicted of violating the state "race hatred" law; they were accused of making or promoting anti-Jewish speeches at the camp.

But last week-end the state supreme court reversed their prison sentences and fines and declared the law unconstitutional. The court's decision said:

"Freedom of speech and of the press are not absolute rights . . . yet it would be a greater evil to our state and its people if the press was subject to censorship and the free speech of the individual dependent upon a censor's imprimatur."

The U. S. Supreme Court meanwhile upheld the right of the press and the public to criticize the courts at any stage of a case. The decisions were reversals of contempt of court citations against the Los Angeles Times and Harry Bridges, west coast maritime union leader.

* * *

One Defense Head?

Defense is a complicated business, and willy-nilly the defense and production machine has grown into an extremely complicated thing, controlled by a tangle of departments and boards.

Now Senator Kilgore (D-W. Va.) has introduced a bill to centralize the whole thing in a single department, to be headed by a new cabinet officer. Support for such an idea developed quickly, with Senator Mead (D-N.Y.) declaring it must be adopted to save the small business men. But Senator Pepper (D-Fla.) said "We ought not to disturb a setup that is beginning to click."

* * *

War and Prices.

War has overtaken the administration's efforts to control prices before defense boom inflation pushed them out of sight. Now an even greater boom is in sight, and Price Administrator Henderson testified to the senate banking committee that "We need a strong bill to authorize real control of prices."

Henderson said he didn't think the bill passed by the house had nearly enough teeth in it.

The Army

Home for Christmas.

Many of the boys in the army—many of them literally boys away from home for the first time—have been living just for the day they leave for home on Christmas furlough.

When war news came, it looked like it was all over, but the army went ahead with preparations for the holiday. Local commanders have the authority over granting furloughs, and some were reported cancelled, but in general officials believed any major change in army practice would be delayed until after the holidays.

All soldiers are due back on duty by Jan. 4.

* * *

Women Doctors Want to Help.

The navy bans women doctors. The army doesn't, but in practice there aren't any in either service. Directors of the American Medical Women's Association have sent resolutions to President Roosevelt asking that women physicians be taken into the army reserve "upon the same terms as other members" and that "all proper and necessary steps be taken" to make them eligible for the navy reserve.

People

A-1 Public Servants.

The Board of Supervisors of East St. Louis, Ill., wanted to give Allie McAtee, their pauper investigator, a $300-a-year raise, but McAtee turned it down. He said the boom had cut down the number of paupers so much his job wasn't worth any more than his present $2,000.

Before you faint, get this one—Sheriff Fred A. Ross of Lauderdale county, Mississippi, actually turned back $5,000, thereby keeping a campaign promise for the second year. Ross promised he would keep only a reasonable salary out of the fees he collects and contribute the rest to the state old age pension fund.

Success Story.

Three years ago blond Dorothy Kirsten was financing her study of voice by scrubbing floors. One night she got an audition in a New York radio studio. Grace Moore, Metropolitan star, happened to be there. She packed Dorothy off to Italy to study.

The war cut Dorothy's training career short, but she reached a climax in her career last week-end in Chicago—co-starring with Miss Moore in "La Boheme."

War and Peace In Skies.

While German and British airmen battle in the skies, astronomers of the two countries are still working together on the scientific problems of the heavens. Dr. Bart J. Bok of Harvard, reviewing the year's accomplishments in astronomy, reported:

"In spite of the barriers of censorship, astronomers have during 1941 succeeded in keeping alive international contacts."

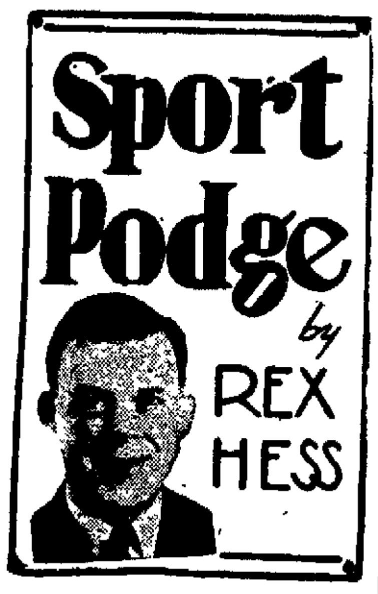
Tygers Make Good Showing While Losing to Wildcats



Of course the directors and league president haven't been canvassed on the subject, so it may not be official.

But it appears to be for the sure! There will be no Ohio State baseball league in 1942!

If I'm wrong—oh well, it won't be the first time.

* * *

First Jesse Williams of the Tiffin Advertiser-Tribune toots taps for the Mud Hens. Then the conductor of this strip hangs a large question mark, not only on the Braves, but the entire league.

And now Dick Behr, of the Fremont News-Messenger, wipes out the circuit with one fell swoop.

* * *

One baseball league those Japs have blasted,

It was a nice, happy family, while it lasted.

* * *

Behr recalls the Tiffin sponge announcement, and the uncertain state of affairs at Mansfield, then starts in on the rest of the circuit somewhat in this wise:

"The outlook in Fostoria has been dark for several seasons, and the Birds haven't known from fall until spring whether they'd play again or not.

"Grover Hartley at Findlay has been concentrating his attention on trying to oust Joe Donnelly as league president, and if Grover has any plans for the future he has been keeping them to himself.

* * *

"That cuts the league to Lima and Fremont. Lima also is dissatisfied with Donnelly, and lost money last year.

"That leaves only Fremont," says Behr, "and Fremont can't play by itself."

Richard, are you kiddin'?

* * *

Which reminds me. I saw the president of the Fostoria club last fall, arranging to open a filling station in the Mansfield area. "I can do much better with filling stations," says he, "that I can filling ball parks."

Madison Rips Up Bellville

Scores 56-16 Victory As County Loop Opens.

Madison's Rams tore up the Bellville Bluejays, 56-16, on Ram hill last night to take its place at the top of the Richland county league standings as the first round of league play was ticked off.

* * *

With both forwards, Harold Hamer and Willy Wynn, nicking the new fan-shaped baskets at will the Rams were never in danger the entire route and spent quite a bit of the evening perfecting their attack.

* * *

Of the 16 points Bellville tallied, 10 were from free throws as the Madison defense kept the slow-breaking Bluejays bottled up.

* * *

High point man was Hammer with 19 points followed by Wynn with 14. Both forwards sunk seven field goals. In the first two minutes of the fourth quarter when the Rams were leading 34-14, Hamer dropped in 10 points to further push the Madison squad out in front.

* * *

On offense the Rams shuttled the ball so fast that defending Jays failed to make connections with the man they were guarding.

Madison's reserves came from behind to take their game, 21-19.

ZIVIC BATTLES KID M'COY TO FAST DRAW

NEW YORK—(AP)—The headlong career of young Kid McCoy toward the welterweight title ran into a temporary detour last night when the babyfaced battler from Detroit was held to a draw by Fritzie Zivic.

It was a rip-tearing contest all the way. They started tossing punches right after the opening bell, and had to be separated when it was over. Zivic's left eye was closed through the last three rounds, and McCoy's left orb was in mourning at the finish.

Union Comes Back To Down Lucas

Union township high school came from behind in its game with Lucas last night to win its Richland county league opener, 24-18.

Trailing on their own floor for most of three quarters, the Indians found themselves as the game closed and went on to win.

Dodgers Trade 4 for Vaughn

Hamlin, Phelps, Wasdell And Coscarart Go.

BROOKLYN —(AP)— Help pull your ball club out of the baseball doldrums—and get traded. Where else could it happen but in Brooklyn?

Leland Stanford MacPhail, boss of the Babbling Brooks, yesterday carried the idea a step further and swapped four members of the first Dodger world series team in 21 years for Shortstop Arky Vaughan of Pittsburgh.

* * *

The National league champions gave up Luke Hamlin, owner of the home-run pitch; Pete Coscarart, light-hitting outfielder; Jimmy Wasdell, outfielder-first baseman, and Babe Phelps, self-grounded catching blimp.

* * *

Still rumored on the trading mart come Cookie Lavagetto, twice in the past two years the National league's third baseman in the all-star game, and Dolph Camilli, slugging first baseman and the senior league's most valuable player of 1941.

Vaughan, 10 years a shortstop with the Pirates, probably will be a third baseman for the Dodgers, especially if MacPhail can find a left-handed pitcher for whom he can trade Lavagetto.

Crestline Takes Willard Cagers

CRESTLINE — Crestline high school defeated Willard high school, 32-26, last night despite the shooting of Denham of Willard who put in a total of 16 points.

Taking the lead in the first quarter, Crestline held it all the way and was never challenged.

The Crestline reserves won their game, 17-13.

High scorers for Crestline were Rombke and Beck with nine points each.

GALION TROUNCED BY COLUMBUS EAST

GALION — Galion high school cagers dropped their second game of the season last night to East High of Columbus, 45 to 25.

Galion lost its opener of the season to Mt. Gilead, and then traveled to Willard Tuesday of this week to bring back a victory.

Galion trailed at the half, 22 to 7, but in the third period Galion made 11 points while the visitors made only 10. Columbus sent in many subs in the final period and piled up 13 additional points, while the local cagers made only seven.

College Teams 'Pour It on'

Findlay Beats Ashland, Wooster Trounces Miami.

(By Associated Press)

High-scoring Ohio college basketball teams are slamming shut the gates of mercy early in the season.

In 11 games involving Buckeye squads last night, the margins of victory ranged up to 32 points and only three were won by fewer than 23 points.

* * *

Leading the assault of the "toughies" was Capital university which opened its season with a 64-32 triumph over Bethany, W. Va.

* * *

Ohio Northern's Polar Bears drubbed Bluffton 69 to 35, and Toledo swamped Kent State 58 to 27 at Toledo.

Bib Bob Gerber of Toledo, one of the State's leading scorers, had another good night, racking up 23 points but Joe Price of Kent State ran him a close second with 20 of his team's 27.

Even little Rio Grande turned on the heat at home to annex its first victory in four starts. The Indians trounced Tiffin 59 to 34 as Jack Duncan of Portsmouth and Howard Vulgamore of Wakefield led the winner with 20 points each.

Findlay won 56 to 37 at Ashand despite the sharpshooting of Ashland's Vince Barr who collected 15 points.

* * *

In a comparatively close contest, Muskingum's lanky tossers defeated Ohio Wesleyan 41 to 33 at Delaware.

Mount Union had little trouble with Defiance, opening the season at Alliance with 43 to 31 triumph.

Buckeye quintets broke even in a pair of out-of-state engagements. Youngstown bowed before Duquesne 43 to 22, while Oberlin trounced Allegheny (Pa.) 39 to 17.

Tonight's schedule:

Kentucky at Ohio State.

Kent State at Bowling Green (Ohio Conference.)

Wilmington at Dayton.

Marietta at Ohio University.

Akron at Hiram.

Wooster at Cincinnati.

Case at Grove City.

Heidelberg at Fenn.

Oberlin at W. & J.

Newark Takes 50-39 Victory Over Mansfield

Hoffman Hoopsters Seek Win Over Elyria Tonight

STILL seeking their first victory of the season, Mansfield high school's basketball Tygers return to their home court tonight with at least an even chance of marking up that initial win against Elyria.

Last night Mansfield made a much better showing than had been expected while dropping a 39 to 50 decision at Newark to one of the best high school teams in the state.

And Elyria took its third defeat in four games, being swamped by Cleveland Heights 48 to 25. Elyria also has lost to Akron South 29-40, and to Lima Central 32-43.

* * *

The Elyrians have one advantage over the Tygers. They defeated Findlay 29 to 24, while Mansfield lost at Findlay 21-25. Both Mansfield and Elyria gained substantial leads over Findlay in the first half, and then faded in the latter part of the game.

* * *

Newark's state tournament veterans got away to a 17 to 10 lead last night in the first quarter against the Tygers, and increased it to 30 to 18 at the half.

Both teams used every boy on the squad, so the fact that the Tygers were able to cut one point from the Newark margin in the last half brings them as much credit as though each school had stuck to its starting lineup. One team wasn't weakened any more by substitutions than the other.

* * *

One happy result of the new combination tried by Coach Vern Hoffman of the Tygers last night was the scoring of Bob Winbigler, who popped in 13 points from his new forward post.

* * *

The Tygers also made 31 per cent of their shots, which ordinarily would have been good enough to win, but not against Newark with boys like Seesholtz and Dee Snelling training their eyes on the hoops.

Snelling led both teams with 16 points, while Seesholtz tied Winbigler for runner-up honors with 13 points.

At the half Snelling and Seesholtz had all but four of Newark's 30 points, but the Tygers changed their defense for the second half and slowed both of them down.

Mansfield was really outplayed only in the second quarter, when Newark took advantage of pass interceptions to ring up three buckets in a row to spark a rally.

* * *

Mansfield reserves were defeated in the preliminary game 47 to 26, but Baker of the Tygers took top scoring honors with 12 points.

* * *

The Mansefield and Elyria reserves will play a preliminary game tonight at 7 o'clock, with the main attraction scheduled for 8 o'clock.

"Woods and Waters"

By

YUNCKER BROS.

The beaver's tail, as is commonly believed, is not used as a trowel but for steering himself through the water and for lifting and depressing the body. About the only pounding the beaver does with his tail is on the water, as a danger signal. Mud is transported under his chin and is chinked by his fore-paws.

Nature did foxes a bad turn by putting scent glands in their feet. But the cunning red fox has been known to outwit hounds by hitching a ride on the back of a sheep to break the scent.

Yuncker's annual Sportsmen's Calendars for 1942 are ready, and you may have yours by calling at our store. It contains many things of interest to the sportsman. As none will be mailed out this year, drop in and get yours

Ladies who are still puzzled about "HIS" gift, will find it easy to choose really preferred sporting goods gifts, at Yuncker's. Fishing tackle, hunting supplies, equipment for all outdoor or indoor sports . . . there's a wealth of worthwhile suggestions, and at prices that fit your budget perfectly.

Early Colonial settlers killed off the northern raven because these birds were supposed to harbor devils, demons, and evil spirits who preyed upon the food stocks of the struggling pioneers. Hawks are approaching extinction because of the belief that the only good hawk is a dead one. However, the hawk is one of our most valuable mice-killers.

Hard to swallow, this one, but reliable persons say it's true. Lenton Henslee, Amity, Ga., heard the distress call of a mother quail, and found a black snake swallowing her eggs. He killed the snake, opened it, and found five of the seven eggs intact. He put them back in the nest to join the five the snake hadn't yet touched. The quail went back to her nest and the next morning there were eight baby quail in the nest.

Harold Lyons, Doaktown, N.B., last September hooked a big Atlantic salmon at about 7 p. m., in the famed Miramichi river of New Brunswick, played it until 5 a. m. the next day, only to see it finally break loose, carrying with it the fly, leader, and about 30 yards of line. There were two witnesses to the stirring but fruitless battle.

"The Authority on Authorities"

BEWARE OF THAT REBID

SUPPOSE you are playing with a very fine partner. If he bids "one more than necessary" to overcall the opponent's suit bid at his right, count him for a strong two-suiter, and keep the bidding open for him if you have a few dregs of strength, so you can learn what is his other suit, in case you don't fit the first well enough to raise it. But, if after that, he then rebids his original suit, take care. Don't count him any longer for a strong hand, but for the other type on which he would make that jump overcall—quite a suit, but bid for purposes of impeding the enemy. If you raise him, you may rue it.

Notice how the South player at Table 3 got the best result for his side by making the right bid. Behold the others first. At No. 1, South's double, for fancy reasons, did not work. It fooled North into thinking he could beat 4-Hearts, whereas it was made, plus an extra, with the loss of one trick in spades and one in diamonds. South should not even have left the double in, after fooling his mate.

At No. 2, South's simple overcall made it easy for West to make a free bid of 2-Hearts, so that East and West reached a game bid. South, overcalling this at 4-Spades, was set one trick, losing two in hearts, one in diamonds and one in clubs.

At No. 3, South's winning bid of 2-Spades was too high for West to overcall with 3-Hearts, so he passed. North, properly treating this as probably showing a two-suiter, strained to keep it open, with 2-No Trumps. When South then bid 3-Spades, North knew the jump overcall had been on a considerable suit, but not much else. He soundly resisted the temptation to raise to game or call game in No Trumps. Neither of the opponents, blocked from having shown any fit, could dare come in over that, so at the 3-Spades it was played and made for a clean "top on the board."

Your Week-End Lesson.

If you and your partner show a powerful two-suiter over a hostile opening call by bidding "one more than necessary" in one of your suits, as an almost absolute one-time force, so that on the next turn the other suit can be disclosed, what kind or kinds of hands should you proclaim when you make an informatory, or take-out double?

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"I HAVE thought of it, yes," I told my father, not wishing to minimize something to which he patently ascribed importance. But secretly I did not think the reference in Marion's letter to "something blue" which Mary had once promised for her wedding meant anything more than a frantic attempt of the captive girl to have her mother get hold of Mary, and thus have her letter decoded.

"But you do not place much stock in it?" he queried quickly.

"I won't say that," I returned. "But of one thing I am sure. There is no reference in the code book to anything blue for a wedding."

"I am aware of that," he said impatiently. "But there may be memories shared by those two girls which were not jotted down in a code book."

Mary's Memory.

"No doubt there are," I acquiesced. "The only doubt I have is how much Mary can remember of their early companionship. She was older than Marion, and at that age the difference in years meant much more than now. Mary was approaching young womanhood, Marion was still a child, although there were not so many actual years between them.

"I do not know that I am explaining this very well," I said haltingly, "but I am trying to tell you that their companionship meant much more to Marion than to the older girl. She would be apt to remember many things about which Mary's mind would now be a total blank."

A Task for Madge.

My father's reply "set me back on my heels," in my husband's vocabulary.

"That will be your task," he said, "to explore Mary's sub-conscious—isn't that the modern jargon?—and get her to remember as much of that early association as she can. Get her to tell you everything she can remember, no matter how trivial; any childish pacts they made, no matter how silly they may sound."

There was something in his voice which suddenly made me feel ashamed of having dismissed Marion's mention of "something blue" so lightly. For I was suddenly sure that he attached great weight to what Mary could remember of her early companionship with Marion.

What it was he expected to find out, he of course had no idea, but it was plain that he considered it fertile ground, and expected me to delve in it.

"Where will Mary be?" he asked, as we neared the Lansfield.

Must Convince Noel.

"She was to sleep in my suite," I said. "This is about her usual waking time, so I imagine she is still there."

"Then please lose no time in going directly to her," he said. "When you have finished finding out about Marion, plan with her about the best method of contacting Stephen Redfield. She must placate him so that he will resume the companionship from which we already have gleaned so much valuable information. But before she sees Redfield you have a most important task, you know."

My throat was suddenly dry. Indeed I did know, for he had made it plain, but it was a task for which I had but little taste; which, rather, I greatly dreaded.

"I suppose you mean seeing Noel," I said, "and making him see reason about Mary's renewed association with Stephen Redfield. I must tell you, Father, that I have very grave doubts about being able to bring Noel around to your point of view."

Spencer Demands Haste.

"If you have doubts, of course you won't succeed," he said with acerbity. "I am asking you to put those doubts aside, and talk to Noel with full confidence that he will see the justice of the thing, as we do."

I wanted to say, "But he happens to be Mary's husband." Instead I asked quietly, "Do you want me to talk to Noel before I go back to the Underwoods?"

My father gave me an incredulous stare.

"But of course," he said. "As soon as you have finished questioning Mary about Marion, I wish you to go directly to Noel."

CHAPTER XVI

Entering Andre Delaine's shop one forenoon, Chester Dennison found the proprietor perched on his work table, swinging his feet and chewing meditatively on a dead cigar. He smiled cheerfully as he recognized his caller.

"Good morrow, Dennison, good morrow!"

"Good morning, Mr. Delaine."

"And how are you today? Have you come to stand in my barrel? I can fix you up in a very few minutes, though I must profess that your trousers look well pressed . . . as much as I hate to turn away business."

"No thanks. I just dropped in for a minute as I was passing, to say hello."

"Why, now I appreciate that. I never timeo Danaos, though I can't somehow imagine you are bearing gifts again.

Chester helped himself to a chair and lighted a cigaret. He regarded the little tailor thoughtfully.

"You may not consider it a gift, Delaine, but I have something to offer just the same. The last time I was in here" he was choosing his words with care—"you suggested that I might not have been altogether gentlemanly in transacting business with you. I'm afraid I did employ some uncalled for language and I extend my apologies, if you will accept them."

Andre's mouth twisted in a smile.

"You're not accustomed to apologizing much. Are you?"

"Well . . . perhaps not."

"I'd rather you didn't—so far as I'm concerned. But I assure you I appreciate it, my boy. What's more, Dennison, I think I would very much enjoy being friends with you. You're rather the man I should have been at your age and wasn't." A little glint of amusement showed in his blue eyes. "Call it bombast if you will, but there aren't so many people here whom I find interesting. There are plenty who are better educated than I, but they still don't appeal to me. If you know what I mean."

"I think I do," the younger man said gravely.

"You would. Then we'll let bygones be bygones. Drop in any time. I assure you that you will be most welcome. Everything considered, it may sound presumptuous, but if I can ever be of service to you in any way I shall feel complimented. I have been a close observer of the local scene for some time."

"Thank you." Dennison hesitated. "I have not had the time or opportunity to make any friends here to speak of. But noturally—"

"Of course!" Andre interrupted. "A man of your age can't exist wholly on the dry bones of business."

"Miss Delaine was good enough to ask me to call," Chester said.

"And I second the invitation. Gladly. Come out any time you feel like relaxing. Do you play pinochle?"

"Sorry. I don't."

"One of your men by name of Davis—a bricklayer boss—is staying with us just now. We often play of an evening. Bridge is rather beyond us and my good sister, Mrs. Steel, never has got over the idea there's a devil lurking in every deck. But we can always induce Carol to sit in a poker game. You mightn't think it, but she's an adroit player. I taught her myself. You do indulge in that pastime, I see."

"Occasionally."

Chester said it with a show of carelessness, but his quick betrayal of interest caused Andre to speculate. However, all he said was:

"Fine. We'll have a session at your convenience. I don't suppose you have a great deal of leisure."

"Not much." Chester ground out his cigaret and frowned. "I had been thinking of hiring a local girl or woman who could take phone calls and keep a few records at least. Then it occurred to me it wouldn't do because I sleep at the office. Toward morning, at least."

"That would tear any Jericho girl's character to shreds," Andre agreed cheerfully. "Give her a past in no time."

"Then I wrote to the bosses and asked if they would transfer a man here, a likely chap who has been carrying on for me in a way since I left. This morning I have a letter saying that he had been injured in an auto accident and will be laid up indefinitely. Of course they didn't suggest a substitute. I'll have to go into that now."

"Too bad." Andre fingered his mustache. "A few bright boys ripen on the trees here, but they usually fly to greener fields when they find their wings."

"I should imagine so. That's apt to be the way in small towns.'

Andre reflected over that, then said:

"I presume the job would not be permanent."

"If I could get hold of a promising man it might be. When we get into production. Did you have someone in mind?"

"Yes and no." Andre returned cautiously. "I was thinking of a young friend here. An extremely capable boy, I'd say, and worth a better future than his present employer is likely to give him. But to tell the truth, Dennison, I'm a little reticent about making any suggestions. Some people here in Jericho feel that I should hand out favors to them just now. Others shy away noticeably. Moral leper attitude."

"I know what you mean."

Japs Admit Marines Still Hold Wake

Japan admitted tacitly today that an heroic American Marine detachment, aided by construction workers and Pan American Airways workers, continued to hold out on Wake island, the four-mile long coral outpost 2,000 miles west of Hawaii.

Imperial headquarters, in its latest communique, said Japanese fleet units attacked the island Thursday and that "military objectives" were damaged heavily.

Tokyo asserted also that Japanese invasion forces had captured Kowloon, chief town on the mainland of Hong Kong colony and were moving up artillery to attack Victoria, the capital, on Hong Kong island across the harbor.

It was asserted that a British gunboat and three merchant ships had been sunk by Japanese navy planes at Hong Kong.

A communique reported that Japanese forces had occupied the international settlement on Kulangsu island, up the coast from Hong Kong.

British Withdraw In Kedah Area

LONDON — (UP) — Japanese mechanized forces, driving down from Thailand, have forced a local withdrawal by British Empire forces in the Kedah area of northwestern Malaya, official aides said today.

There was little change in the situation in northeastern Malaya, informants added.

There was no confirmation of reports that Japanese troops had landed in southern Malaya, where Singapore is situated.

THEATERS

Blues Era.

Days when Basin street in New Orleans and Beale street in Memphis vied with each other in making the rest of the country conscious of a new brand of music, the blue type of jazz, are recalled in "Birth of the Blues," a spirited musical film, showing at the Ohio. Starring Bing Crosby as a venturesome bandleader who assembled the hottest musicians Dixieland had to offer the picture also features Jack Teagarden, trombonist, Mary Martin as soloist and Brian Donlevy as trumpeter. March of Time, showing "Norway in Revolt," supplements the bill.

* * *

Gay Triangle.

Irene Dunne finds that she has "Unfinished Business" in the picture by that name showing at the Madison when she realizes that she has married the brother of the man she should have married. Robert Montgomery plays the husband and Preston Foster the brother in this gay triangle concerning a girl who wanted to be an opera star but who had to content herself with singing in a night club instead. Eugene Pallette, Esther Dale and Walter Catlett are others in the picture directed by Gregory LaCava. The Merry Macs are featured in "Moonlight in Hawaii," the second attraction.

* * *

Cooper Starred.

Gary Cooper is starred in "Meet John Doe," opening Sunday at the Ritz. Barbara Stanwyck plays opposite the star. "When Ladies Meet," the companion feature, has a cast topped by Joan Crawford, Robert Taylor, Greer Garson and Herbert Marshall.

* * *

The Mark of Zorro.

Exciting adventure is found in "The Mark of Zorro," Tyrone Power's starring vehicle showing at the Park. Revolving around the maneuvers of a masked night-riding bandit whose sword struck terror in Old California the picture is also replete with ardent romance and a duel to the death between Basil Rathbone as a deep-dyed villain and Power. Linda Darnell and Gale Sondergaard are in the cast also Eugene Pallette. "San Antonio Rose," featuring "The Merry Macs," Eve Arden and Robert Paige is the co-feature.

* * *

Gangland Story.

Joan Woodbury plays the leading role in "Paper Bullets," story of gangland and a crooked municipal election, opening Sunday at the Majestic. Miss Woodbury appears as the queen of the ring who encounters trouble when she tries to abdicate against her followers' wishes. Jack Larue, Kenneth Harland and Vince Barnett are in the cast. "Emergency Landing," with Carol Hughes and Evelyn Brent is the second attraction.

that time he was stationed at Pearl Harbor. He enlisted in the navy in September, 1940.

Meanwhile, relatives of eight Mansfield youths known to have been aboard two American vessels reportedly sunk in the Pacific war were cheered by absence of any notification from the navy department.

Residents of this area continued to receive reassuring messages from friends and relatives in the war area. Mr. and Mrs. E. The cable reported that he and his wife were "all okay."

Word was received at Shelby from Mr. and Mrs. George Lynch of that city that they are safe in Hawaii. He is stationed on one of the U. S. battleships in that area. His wife, the former Jean Guenther, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Guenther, joined him there last fall.

REGISTRATION BILL SPEEDED

Congress Sees Early Passage Of Bill to Sign Up Men Between 18 and 65.

48 inclusive as liable for active service.

Both senate and house military affairs committees were called into Saturday sessions in an effort to speed work on the measure to get between 40,000,000 and 50,000,000 men to sign up for Uncle Sam.

"I don't favor drafting men before 21," Rep. Sparkman (D.), Ala., a member of the committee said. "They've got to show me that we really need them, and I don't think we do. After all, in the World war we raised an army of between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 and never drafted anyone below 21."

Rep. Elston (R.), Ohio, another committeeman, also said he would have to be shown the necessity for drafting "youngsters."

Those who had conferred with war department officials said:

First the men between 21 and 28 registered under the present draft law will be "rechecked" if the bill passes, with officials feeling they can get another 1,000,000 or so from those who, in peacetime, were deferred.

Next, the group between 28 and 36 who already are registered but who were deferred under a draft act amendment, will be gone over and should yield some 1,000,000 men fit for service.

By that time the expectation is that close to another 1,000,000 will have become 21 since last registration day, July 1, and they will be taken.
